Dear David

I hope I have not missed the critical date by TOO much! Anyway I attach a nomination for a new fellow for you and the committee to consider - Dr Christian Hilber. He is both a colleague and a co-author which gives me both an advantage and a disadvantage in nominating him. I do know his strengths and rate him very highly: but the committee might judge me too close to him.

Anyway I attach a nomination form and a copy of his CV. As requested I have not consulted him

Paul

INTERNATIONAL FELLOW: Dr. Christian Hilber

Home page: http://personal.lse.ac.uk/hilber/Hilber\_CV\_web\_version.pdf

Christian is an up and coming scholar in urban and real estate economics already with substantial achievement and substantial future promise as well. If you look at his pipeline of papers and projects this is clear. He is also course director of the most prestigious real estate post grad course in the UK. This is also one of the most competitive entry courses in the London School of Economics. He is very engaged with students and a constructive critic or collaborator. Last year he was awarded the Economic Journal's Royal Economic Society prize for contributing to the peer review process, 'beyond the call of duty, and giving thorough and constructive feedback to authors.' This is a very fair assessment. I am sure he would not only make an excellent Weimer School Fellow but would contribute constructively to its future and to its meetings
